

Two-day Workshop Netherlands Institute at Athens

The Greek War of Independence and the Ottomans: Impact, Perceptions and Transformation within and Beyond the Empire

Monday 13 September 2021

17:00-18:00 Key-note Speech

E.J. Zürcher (Leiden University):

State, nationhood and citizenship: the dilemmas of the Ottoman army in the age of nationalism.

18:00-18:15 Break

18:15 – 20:00 Panel 1: Ottoman/Turkish Perspectives of the Greek Revolution

Dilek Ozkan (University of Athens)

Ottoman perceptions of the Greek Revolution, and resettlement of the Muslim refugees of the Peloponnese.

Leonidas Moiras (University of Athens) and Alexandros Lamprou (Marburg University)
Ottoman and Turkish Perceptions of the Greek Revolution and Greek irredentism.

Tuesday 14 September 2021

10:00 – 12:00 Panel 2: The Greek Revolution and the Balkans

Elmira Vasileva (Bulgarian Academy of Sciences)

Protestant missionaries and the Greek Revolution

Dimitris Stamatopoulos (University of Macedonia)

The Ecumenical Patriarchate and the dissolution of the Phanariot system: from Moldovlachia to Constantinople.

12:00 – 13:30 Lunch Break & Coffee

13:30 – 16:00 Panel 3: Alternative Narratives

Nikos Christofis (Shaanxi Normal University)

The Greek War of Independence and/in Cyprus: History Textbooks, Official Historiography, and Contested Narratives.

Panos Kourgiotis (Hellenic Open University)

Egyptian perceptions of the Greek Revolution; war and the emergence of modern Egypt.

Aristides N. Hatzis (University of Athens)

'The Absolute Barbarians' as victims: The Perception of the Ottomans in the British Press during the Revolution and the case of the Tripolitsa massacre.